Six Instructors and fifteen Juniors shot in the match. All competitors shot with iron sights. Ten shots were fired for record on the NRA A-17 target at 50 feet. Juniors and Instructors shot on the same relays. The best four scores from the Juniors and Instructors were used to make up the team scores.

The Instructors feared they were going to get beat by the Juniors since some of the Juniors had been shooting excellent scores nearly all year. The Instructors did not want another year of heckling from the Juniors. To the Instructors surprise, before the night was over it appeared the Instructors practiced what they had been preaching to the Juniors and ended up the winners, giving the Instructors bragging and heckling rights for the year.

The both teams shot approximately 20 points higher than last year and had a good time. Scores are normally close and you never know which team is going to win until all competitors have shot.
